

Table of Contents

vii	Acknowledgments
vii	About the Editors
viii	Multicultural Issues Board Members
xi	Foreword
xiii	Prologue
1	Introduction
11	Border Trauma and Blurred Lines—When Personal Feelings Affect Clinical Decisions
21	Mistaken Identity—Reflections on Subconscious Bias and Client Deference
29	Navigating Systemic and Social Prejudice—Acknowledging Historical Trauma as a Precursor to Patient Advocacy
37	Engendering Cultural Responsiveness in Clinical Practice—Regarding Gender Identity and Expression
43	Listening to the Silence—Second Language Acquisition and Preventing Misdiagnosis
51	When Collaboration Meets Contrasting Beliefs—Navigating Autism Spectrum Disorder Treatment Within Cultural Expectations
61	Assimilation and Language Assumptions—Why English Isn't "Better"
69	Every Child Is Unique—Overrepresentation of Linguistically Diverse Students in Special Education
77	Conflicts in Culture—When the Special Education Process Has Unintended Consequences
83	Representation and Race in Foster Care—Including and Informing All Parties
91	You Can't Judge a Book by Its Cover—Misconceptions About Cultural Knowledge Based on Physical Appearances
99	Articulation and African American English (AAE)—Dialect or Discrimination?
107	It Takes a Community—Uniting Clinical and Cultural Practices to Capitalize on Intervention Outcomes
113	Lost in Translation—Interpreting Special Education for Culturally Diverse Families
121	We've Always Done It This Way—Implications of Audiological At-Home Remedies and Culturally Responsive Intervention
127	Stuttering and Stigma in a Somali Family—How Understanding Etiology Can Affect Choices in Intervention
135	Language Immersion Programs—Professional Accountability in a Dual Language Setting
143	Where Do I Begin? Undertaking Language Disorder and Language Difference Interventions in the Classroom
149	I Stutter and Have an Accent—Can I Be Your Speech-Language Pathologist? Clinical Education Approaches to Supervision of Student Clinicians With Speech and Fluency Disorders
157	Safe Spaces—Creating an Inclusive Environment for Gender Diverse Individuals
165	Self-Treatment in Adult Fluency Disorders—The Tip of the Iceberg
173	Marrying Cultural and Clinical Practices—Adapting Clinical Practices to be Inclusive of Cultural Beliefs
181	A Token of Gratitude—Can Culturally Responsive Practices Become a Conflict of Interest?
187	Clinical Education of Students From Diverse Linguistic Backgrounds—Ensuring Appropriate Practices
195	If These Walls Could Talk—Professional Integrity and Cultural Responsiveness in the Workplace
201	Open for Business—Providing Culturally Responsive Support to Multilingual Patients
209	Cultural Responsiveness and Conscience Protection—Personal Beliefs, Discrimination, and Conscience Protection in the Clinical Setting
215	Impact Versus Intent—When "Trying to Help" Can Actually Be Harmful
221	Bilingual Clients With Aphasia—Bicultural Perspectives When Interviewing, Assessing, and Treating
229	Can You Hear Me Now—Addressing Hearing Loss and Treatment in Aging Parents
237	Cognition and Hearing Loss—Gender, Generational, and Multilingual Considerations in Differential Diagnosis