FACULTY

Lisa Wallace, MS, CCC-SLP, is a speech-language pathologist who has specialized in working with children with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) for the past 25 years. Currently, she oversees treatment provided through research funding for studying the effects of intensive applied behavior analysis (ABA) services and parent training for toddlers with autism. She also trains school-based SLPs in best practices with students with ASD.

Financial Disclosures
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures
- None

Kristin Dorris, MS, CCC-SLP, is an educational consultant/speech-language pathologist for the Treatment and Research Institute for Autism Spectrum Disorders at the Vanderbilt Kennedy Center. Her role includes supporting individuals with autism by providing training and coaching to families, educators, and community partners. For more than 20 years, Dorris has partnered with children, adolescents, and adults in a variety of settings including homes, clinics, schools, and developmental centers. She is currently focused on creating and expanding dynamic partnerships for professional development around evidence-based practices for supporting a range of social communication skills, including coaching caregivers and educators. Dorris holds a master of science degree in speech-language pathology from Western Kentucky University. She is also a recent participant in ASHA’s 2019-2020 Leadership Development Program.

Financial Disclosures
- Employee of Vanderbilt University Medical Center
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures
- None