FACULTY

Mariam M. Abdelaziz, PhD, CCC-SLP (she/her), is an Assistant Professor at Radford University. She teaches undergraduate and graduate level courses related to birth-to-5 language development and disorders as well as school-based issues. In addition to teaching, Mariam also supervises graduate students with school-age children in Radford’s Speech-Language-Hearing Center. Her research interests include school-age literacy development and cultural and linguistic diversity, specifically, mentoring and supporting underrepresented students in communication science and disorder programs. She recently completed a 3-year term on ASHA’s Multicultural Issues Board.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- None