FACULTY

Christina Bradburn, MS, CCC-SLP, is a full-time, practicing, school-based speech-language pathologist for Shelbyville Central Schools in Indiana. She is a national presenter and author of “Timesaving Strategies to Integrate SLP Interventions into Classrooms: Moving from a Caseload to a Workload Approach.” She is currently pursuing her PhD in Special Education from Texas Woman’s University. Bradburn serves on the ASHA School Issues Advisory Board and is passionate about working collaboratively with teachers, administrators, and school staff while using creative yet research-based interventions. She strives to maximize time through creative scheduling without sacrificing high-quality and effective services to her students. She is known for her highly practical approach and for sharing a wealth of proven teaching strategies and resources that are easy to use on a daily basis.

Financial Disclosures:

• Royalties from Bureau of Education and Research for role as consultant

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

• Volunteer on ASHA School Issues Advisory Board