“The Fool Speaks, the Wise Man Listens”: Supporting African American Stroke Survivors With Aphasia

FACULTY

Davetrina Seles Gadson, PhD, CCC-SLP, is an SLP with expertise in adult neurological rehabilitation, functional treatment approaches, and health outcomes. She is a post-doctoral research fellow at Georgetown University School of Medicine, where she studies conceptual and technical neuroimaging research methods. Gadson’s research focuses on the contribution of spared brain structures to recovery in stroke survivors and the relationship of race/ethnicity and socioeconomic status to behavioral performance and health-related quality of life.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- Funding from National Institutes of Health