Sierrah Harris, MA, CF-SLP, is a speech-language pathologist (SLP) in the Red Clay Consolidated School District, located in Wilmington, Delaware. She attended Hampton University, where she received a Bachelor of Arts in Communicative Sciences and Disorders, and the University of Delaware, where she received a Master of Arts in Speech-Language Pathology. She is currently a school-based SLP working with the elementary-age population. Sierrah’s areas of interest include cultural humility and school-based services. Sierrah is passionate about promoting diversity within the field of communication sciences and disorders.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- None

Amanda Owen Van Horne, PhD, CCC-SLP, is an associate professor and certified SLP at the University of Delaware, where she directs the Treatment Efficacy and Language Learning (TELL) lab. The TELL lab asks questions about how to help children with DLD and typical children learn to produce complex syntax in the most effective ways. In addition, Dr. Van Horne is active in anti-racism work in both her personal and professional life. This includes an interest in strengthening and promoting culturally responsive intervention practices and enhancing the training opportunities available for groups that are underrepresented in our field.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- None