

FACULTY

---

Teresa Zwolan PhD, CCC-A, is a professor and director of the University of Michigan Cochlear Implant Program. She received her PhD in audiology from Northwestern University and has worked at the University of Michigan since 1990. She is actively involved in patient care, research, and administrative aspects of the Cochlear Implant Program. To date, more than 3,500 patients have received a cochlear implant at the University of Michigan. Zwolan has authored/co-authored several papers on cochlear implants that focus on clinical management of children and adults, and has authored several book chapters dealing with various topics related to cochlear implants.

Financial Disclosures:

- Professor and director of Cochlear Implant Program at the University of Michigan
- Advisory Board for Cochlear America
- Training Course Director for Institute for Cochlear Implant Training
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- Advisor, ASHA Audiology 2019 Planning Group