FACULTY

MaryAnn Romski, PhD, CCC-SLP, is the Regents Professor of Communication, Psychology, and Communication Sciences & Disorders at Georgia State University in Atlanta. She is Director of the Center for Research on Atypical Development and Learning (CRADL) and a founding member of the Center on Research on Challenges to Acquiring Language & Literacy (RCALL). She received the Honors of ASHA in 2015 and is a Fellow of the American Association of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AAIDD), ASHA, and the International Society for Augmentative and Alternative Communication. Her research program, funded by NICHD, NIDCD, FIC, and IES, focuses on the communication development of young children with developmental disorders who encounter difficulty speaking, particularly the development and evaluation of computerized communication interventions. Romski has published three books and more than 125 articles and chapters, and has given numerous national and international presentations. She is extending her intervention research in South Africa via the development of an APP for caregivers. She serves as associate editor for Infants and Young Children and Augmentative and Alternative Communication, is the past chair of the National Joint Committee on the Communication Needs of Individuals with Severe Disabilities and remains AAIDD’s representative.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation
- Employee of Georgia State University

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- Volunteer member of the National Joint Committee for the Communication Needs of Persons With Severe Disabilities

Rose A. Sevcik, PhD, is Regents Professor of Psychology at Georgia State University in Atlanta and Co-Director of the Center for Research on the Challenges of Acquiring Language and Literacy (RCALL). Her funded research program focuses on the language, literacy, and communication development of children and youth with significant developmental disabilities. Sevcik has an extensive publication record and has given numerous presentations to national and international audiences. She is a Fellow of ASHA, the International Society for Augmentative and Alternative Communication (ISAAC), and the American Association on Intellectual and...
Developmental Disabilities (AAIDD). She is past-president of AAIDD’s Communication Disorders Division and former coordinator for ASHA’s Special Interest Division 12: AAC. She has served as the associate editor for language for the Journal of Speech Language and Hearing Research and for the journal Augmentative and Alternative Communication. She is a member of the National Joint Committee on the Communication Needs of Individuals with Severe Disabilities.

Financial Disclosures:

- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures:

- Volunteer member of the National Joint Committee for the Communication Needs of Persons With Severe Disabilities