

FACULTY

Emily Rubin, MS, CCC-SLP, is the director of the Educational Outreach Program at the Marcus Autism Center in Atlanta, Georgia. She is a speech-language pathologist specializing in autism spectrum disorder, Asperger's, and related social learning differences. As a former adjunct faculty member and lecturer at Yale University, she served as a member of their Autism and Developmental Disabilities Clinic. She has also served as an instructor for the Communication Sciences and Disorders Department of Emerson College in Boston, Massachusetts, where she has developed courses to prepare graduate-level students for addressing the needs of children with autism and their families. More recently, she has joined the team at the Marcus Autism Center, affiliated with Emory University, as an educational outreach specialist. In addition to the SCERTS® Assessment, her publications have focused on early identification of autism, contemporary intervention models, and programming guidelines for high-functioning autism and Asperger's. She recently joined the 2019 ASHA Convention Program Committee as Autism Topic Chair. She lectures internationally and provides consultation to educational programs, with an emphasis on creating learning environments that enhance social and emotional engagement for all learners.

Financial Disclosures

- Director of Communication Crossroads, Inc.
- Director of the Educational Outreach Program at Marcus Autism Center
- Author royalties from Paul H. Brookes Publishing Co. for The SCERTS® Model
- Presenter royalties from MedBridge
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures

- Autism Topic Chair for 2019 ASHA Convention Program Committee
- Executive Committee Member for National Autism Leadership Collaborative