

FACULTY

Anthony D. Koutsoftas, PhD, CCC-SLP, is an Associate Professor of Speech-Language Pathology in the School of Health and Medical Sciences at Seton Hall University, Nutley, New Jersey. He received his bachelor's degree from New York University, master's degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, and PhD from Arizona State University. Koutsoftas teaches undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral courses related to language and literacy in school-age populations as well as research methods courses. His research interests include the development of reading, oral language, and writing abilities in typically developing children and children at risk for academic failure, including those with language-based learning disabilities. Koutsoftas has presented his work at international and national conferences, including the ASHA Convention, Symposium on Research in Child Language Disorders, Society for Research in Child Development, Society for Scientific Studies in Reading, Writing Research Across Borders, and the Conference on Writing Research. He has published his work in peer-reviewed journals, including the Journal of Speech, Language, and Hearing Research; Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools; International Journal of Language and Communication Disorders; Reading and Writing: An Interdisciplinary Journal; and The Elementary School Journal. Koutsoftas is currently the Co-Project Director for a U.S. Department of Education, Institute of Education Sciences grant project titled, Project WILLD (Writing in Students with Language-based Learning Disabilities) that is funded for $1.4 million over 4 years.

Financial Disclosures

- Employee of Seton Hall University
- Owner of The Speech Guy PLLC
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures

- None