FACULTY

Erik X. Raj, PhD, CCC-SLP, is a practicing speech-language pathologist who works with school-age children and adolescents with various communication difficulties. He is currently an assistant professor and clinical supervisor in the Department of Speech-Language Pathology at Monmouth University in West Long Branch, New Jersey, and is also a facilitator at Camp Shout Out, a Michigan-based sleep-away summer camp for young people who stutter. Raj regularly presents interactive workshops demonstrating how speech-language pathologists can use mobile and Internet-based technologies to educate and motivate school-age children and adolescents. In addition to developing more than 25 mobile apps for children with communication difficulties, he is the creator of Your Face Learning, an educational app for the iPhone and iPad that was named Creative Child Magazine’s 2019 Children’s App of the Year. Raj obtained his bachelor of science degree in speech pathology and audiology from Stockton University in New Jersey, master of science degree in speech-language pathology from Misericordia University in Pennsylvania, and doctorate in communication sciences and disorders from Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan.

Financial Disclosures
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures
- None