Tiffany P. Hogan, PhD, CCC-SLP, is a professor in the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders at MGH Institute of Health Professions and director of the Speech and Language (SAIL) Literacy Lab. Hogan studies the genetic, neurologic, and behavioral links between oral and written language development, with a focus on co-morbid speech, language, and literacy disorders such as dyslexia, developmental language disorder, and speech sound disorder. Her research is funded by the National Institutes of Health's National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders. In addition to research, Hogan teaches graduate courses in literacy assessment and intervention, leading literacy change, and professional issues in academia. She is committed to implementation science and translating research to practice through advocacy efforts as a host of the podcast www.seehearspeakpodcast.com and as co-founder of the informational website www.dldandme.org. Hogan serves on ASHA committees, is an elected board member of the Society for the Scientific Study of Reading, and was chair of a pre-conference symposium at the 2019 International Dyslexia Association annual convention.
