FACULTY

René Gifford, PhD, CCC-A, is a Professor of Hearing and Speech Sciences and Director of the Cochlear Implant Program and Cochlear Implant Research Laboratory at Vanderbilt University Medical Center. Her research investigates basic auditory processing and spatial hearing for individuals with hearing loss. She is the Chair of the Vanderbilt Women on Track committee, focused on the promotion, retention, and advancement of women in academic medicine and science.

Financial Disclosures:
- Grant funds from NIH NIDCD
- Paid advisor for AB (member of audiology advisory board), Cochlear (member of audiology advisory board), and Frequency Therapeutics (member of clinical advisory board)

Nonfinancial Disclosures:
- No nonfinancial relationships relevant to the content of the session

Dr. Lauren Calandruccio is an Associate Professor at Case Western Reserve University in the Department of Psychological Sciences. She is a board member of the ASHFoundation, and a past Editor for the American Journal of Audiology. Her research focuses on speech perception and is currently funded by the NIH. She is the 2019 Hearing, Vestibular and Tinnitus Science and the Hearing Research Symposium Topic Chair.

Financial Disclosures:
- No financial relationships relevant to the content of the session

Nonfinancial Disclosures:
- No nonfinancial relationships relevant to the content of the session