DISCLOSURES

Financial Disclosures
Shelley K. Lund was employed by the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee while conducting the research and publishing the article. Wendy Quach is an associate professor at San Jose State University. Kristy Weissling is employed by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She receives honoraria for presenting at conferences across the country. She receives royalties from MedBridge for a presentation on AAC assessment and treatment. She does adjunct online teaching and receives payment for teaching services. Miechelle McKelvey is employed by the University of Nebraska-Kearney. Aimee Dietz reports no financial relationships to the content of this article.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Kristy Weissling is the Nebraska representative to the ASHA Advisory Council. She is the vice president of the Nebraska Stroke Association and Vice-President of Medical for the Nebraska Speech and Hearing Association. She serves on the advocacy committee for ISAAC. She is also a member of the Nebraska Stroke Advisory Subcommittee on Education for Rural Health Care Providers. Miechelle McKelvey is a board member of the Nebraska State Stroke Association. Shelley K. Lund, Wendy Quach, and Aimee Dietz report no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

Financial Disclosures
Jennifer J. Thistle was employed as faculty at University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire while conducting this research and received a fellowship grant allowing her the time to complete the data collection for this research. She is currently employed at Western Washington University. Stephanie A. Holmes, Madeline M. Horn, and Alyson M. Reum report no additional financial relationships to the content of this article.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Jennifer J. Thistle, Stephanie A. Holmes, Madeline M. Horn, and Alyson M. Reum report no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

Financial Disclosures
Jiali Liang and Krista Wilkinson report no financial relationships to the content of this article.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Jiali Liang and Krista Wilkinson report no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

Financial Disclosures
Partial support for this research was provided by grants from the Tennessee Department of Education and U.S. Department of Education’s Office of Special Education Programs. Erik W. Carter is an employee of Vanderbilt University. Carly B. Gilson is an employee of Texas A&M University. Elizabeth E. Biggs reports no additional financial relationships to the content of this article.

Nonfinancial Disclosures
Erik W. Carter is a member of TASH, Council for Exceptional Children, and American Association on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities. Elizabeth E. Biggs and Carly B. Gilson report no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.