DISCLOSURES

Do Mothers and Fathers of Egyptian Stuttering Children View Stuttering Differently?
Eman Mostafa
Department of Otolaryngology, Faculty of Medicine, Sohag University
Sohag, Egypt

Kenneth O. St. Louis
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, West Virginia University
Morgantown, WV

Ahlam Abdel-Salam El-Adawy
Department of Otolaryngology, Faculty of Medicine, Sohag University
Sohag, Egypt

Ahmed Mamdouh Emam
Department of Otolaryngology, Faculty of Medicine, Sohag University
Sohag, Egypt

Zahra Moemen Elbarody
Department of Otolaryngology, Faculty of Medicine, Sohag University
Sohag, Egypt

Disclosures
Financial: Kenneth O. St. Louis owns the copyright to the POSHA–S, used in the study. Eman Mostafa, Ahlam Abdel-Salam El-Adawy, Ahmed Mamdouh Emam, and Zahra Moemen Elbarody have reported no financial relationships to the content of this article.
Nonfinancial: Eman Mostafa, Kenneth O. St. Louis, Ahlam Abdel-Salam El-Adawy, Ahmed Mamdouh Emam, and Zahra Moemen Elbarody have reported no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

Anticipatory Completions in Conversations Between People Who Stutter and People Who Do Not Stutter
Sergey M. Kondrashov
Vero Beach, FL

John A. Tetnowski
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, Oklahoma State University
Stillwater, OK

Disclosures
Financial: Sergey M. Kondrashov and John A. Tetnowski have reported no financial relationships to the content of this article.
Nonfinancial: John A. Tetnowski is an editor for Perspectives of the ASHA Special Interest Groups, SIG 4: Fluency and Fluency Disorders. Sergey M. Kondrashov has reported no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.