DISCLOSURES

How to Provide Accessible Hearing Health Information to Promote Patient-Centered Care
Rebecca Kelly-Campbell
School of Psychology, Speech and Hearing, University of Canterbury
Christchurch, New Zealand

Vinaya Manchaiah
Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences, Lamar University
Beaumont, TX

Disclosures
Financial: Rebecca Kelly-Campbell and Vinaya Manchaiah have reported no financial relationships to the content of this article.
Nonfinancial: Rebecca Kelly-Campbell and Vinaya Manchaiah have reported no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article.

A Clinically Valuable Interaction in the Midst of COVID-19 and Beyond: A Viewpoint on the Importance of Patient-Centered Outcomes in Rehabilitative Audiology
Alyssa Davidson
Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences, The University of Arizona
Tucson, AZ

Nicole Marrone
Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences, The University of Arizona
Tucson, AZ

Disclosures
Financial: Alyssa Davidson and Nicole Marrone have reported no financial relationships to the content of this article.
Nonfinancial: Alyssa Davidson has reported no nonfinancial relationships to the content of this article. Nicole Marrone is the Professional Development Manager for ASHA SIG 7: Aural Rehabilitation and Its Instrumentation and a member of SIG 6 (Hearing and Hearing Disorders: Research and Diagnostics), 7 (Aural Rehabilitation and Its Instrumentation), and 8 (Audiology and Public Health).